RCMP AT THE POINT OF NO RETURN

Instead of wasting time claiming he is going to study the problem, Public Safety Minister Ralph Goodale should do something concrete and now. For starters, he could make major management and structural changes at RCMP Headquarters. The evidence that management is to blame for the RCMP's Pandora's box is overwhelming. In addition, he should immediately take measures to establish a civilian review board so that it's in place before the next Commissioner is appointed. Finally, he can make the process for selecting the next Commissioner of the RCMP transparent, open and accountable. The time for studying the problem has long passed. ## THE HILL: THE BEST WAY FOR NEW YORK TO ENHANCE PUBLIC SAFETY? MORE GUNS

The question is what do we do when we can't stop killers from getting weapons. If New York City politicians are serious about stopping terrorist attacks, they should take a page from Israel and the vast majority of the U.S. and let citizens defend themselves. Unlike a huge increase in policing, it would come at no expense to taxpayers. And yet, it would likely be more effective. It's time that New York politicians actually trust New Yorkers.
