DON'T THINK CANADA IS IMMUNE FROM DEADLY SCHOOL SHOOTINGS

National Firearms Association President Sheldon Clare warned the latter move creates a public safety risk, as owners of the soon-to-be prohibited firearms will “seek value for them on the black market. This stuff is just going to go underground.” And there’s the problem. While gun control advocates push for tougher restrictions and more regulations, too much regulation can push gun sales underground. And that isn’t good for either side of this argument. Clare and his members have been speaking out against Bill C-71 for months now. At Canada’s largest gun show in Calgary this past March, almost everyone there was united against the proposed bill. “We definitely have too much gun control,” said Clare. “A licence does not prevent a person from making a subsequent bad choice.” by jeff wilkinson - May 18, 2018

The RCMP firearms program may have jumped the gun in a web post that until last month advised firearm retailers that existing federal law requires retailers to verify licences before selling long guns. The statement, which contradicts the relaxation of gun-sale requirements under changes to the Firearms Act by the Harper government in 2012, would have been accurate if new Liberal gun legislation, Bill C-71, were already law. ## HEY PROGRESSIVES: YOUR ANTI-GUN, ENVIRONMENTALIST STANCES ARE KILLING ANIMALS

AND THE FOREST - NPR further explains the issue: This user-play, user-pay funding system for wildlife conservation has been lauded and emulated around the world. It has been incredibly successful at restoring the populations of North American game animals, some of which were once hunted nearly to extinction. But with the slide in hunting participation expected to speed up in the next 10 years, widening funding shortfalls that already exist, there's a growing sense of urgency in the wildlife conservation community to broaden that funding base. Congress is looking at tapping oil and gas revenues. Some states are adding general sales taxes, while others are looking for ways to tweak the user-play, user-pay model to better represent how today's society interacts with wildlife, monetizing activities like wildlife-viewing. Those efforts are running into a larger question: Is the greater public willing to pay more to protect wildlife?

GUN OWNERS SUPPORT A WIDE RANGE OF GUN CONTROL MEASURES, JOHNS HOPKINS STUDY

FINDS - The study was conducted by researchers at Johns Hopkins University and is drawn from a nationally representative 2017 survey that interviewed 602 gun owners and 1,522 non-owners. "Widespread claims that a chasm separates gun owners from non-gun owners in their support for gun safety policies distracts attention from many areas of genuine agreement — areas that can lead to policy solutions and result in the prevention of gun violence," lead author Colleen Barry said in a statement. The study found that more than 60 percent of gun owners said they supported licensing requirements for all gun purchases. Other research has shown that in tandem with universal background check policies, licensing requirements may lead to significant reductions in homicide, suicide and shootings of law enforcement officers.

FBI - ACTIVE SHOOTER INCIDENTS IN THE UNITED STATES IN 2016 AND 2017

The FBI has designated 50 shootings in 2016 and 2017 as active shooter incidents (20 incidents occurred in 2016, while 30 incidents occurred in 2017). EXCERPT: "Armed and unarmed citizens engaged the shooter in 10 incidents. They safely and successfully ended the shootings in eight of those incidents. Their selfless actions likely saved many lives. The enhanced threat posed by active shooters and the swiftness with which active shooter incidents unfold support the importance of preparation by law enforcement officers and citizens alike." Those are the final lines in the conclusion of the FBI's Active Shooter Incidents in the United States in 2016 and 2017.

MEDIA PORTRAYAL OF GUN OWNERSHIP IS INACCURATE AND BIASED

The media's pro-gun control bias doesn't just distort news coverage. TV networks have used their primetime entertainment shows to portray gun rights advocates as dishonest, extremist and unconcerned about the loss of innocent lives. At the same time, advocates of gun control are portrayed as caring, upstanding and responsible citizens. The gun control debate isn't portrayed as having two sides. It's a morality play of good versus evil.

GUN CRIME: HOW DO WEAPONS APPEAR ON ENGLAND'S STREETS?

Guns are very tightly controlled in the UK. Those that end up on the black market often start off as legal guns - but become illegal because they are modified or their licence status changes. For example, a legal gun covered by a firearms licence could be stolen from a farm or firearms dealer. Also, non-firing ceremonial guns or race-starting pistols can be modified to fire bullets. In 2017, Europol - the EU police agency - said: "The reactivation of deactivated weapons and conversion of blank-firing firearms are among the main sources of illegal firearms trafficked in the EU." By Reality Check team BBC News - May 10, 2018 <http://www.bbc.com/news/uk-44053904>
