DEAR JOHN LETTER: TORONTO COP BLAMES MAYOR FOR GUN VIOLENCE 'CRISIS'

A Toronto cop who has served the city with distinction for 37 years is under fire for writing a scathing letter to the mayor, referring to John Tory as a puppet master and pleading with him to let go of the strings and allow police to return to “proactive” policing. GLOBE AND MAIL - AS GUN VIOLENCE SPIKES, TORONTO FACES A RECKONING ON THE ROOT CAUSES OF TRAGEDY

- With Toronto edging toward another record year of shooting victims, there is a growing push to tackle gun violence from a public-health perspective rather than simply an issue of criminal justice. Instead of debating the merits of street checks and bail conditions, researchers and advocates argue that the focus must be on the social inequalities they say lie at the root of the problem.

CSSA COMMENTARY: TRUDEAU GOVERNMENT IS LONG ON TALK, SHORT ON ACTION TO CURB GANG VIOLENCE

- The Minister of Public Safety continues to peddle his announcement of $327 million (or $370 million when speaking before committee) to partner with “provinces, law enforcement agencies, and municipalities on a broad range of initiatives to tackle the issue of violence caused by gangs including most particularly guns and gangs.” There’s only one small problem. Not a single penny of that money has flowed to law enforcement, despite the Minister’s grand announcement last November (and its hollow re-announcement every chance he gets). According to the Minister of Public Safety’s office, Ottawa and the provinces are still sorting out how to deliver the money. GUNTER: GOVERNMENT, AND RESIDENTS, CAN DO MORE TO FIGHT RURAL CRIME

FREDERIC BASTIAT: RIGHTS OF THE 'COMMON FORCE'

"If every person has the right to defend -- even by force -- his person, his liberty, and his property, then it follows that a group of men have the right to organize and support a common force to protect these rights constantly. Thus the principle of collective right -- its reason for existing, its lawfulness -- is based on individual right. And the common force that protects this collective right cannot logically have any other purpose or any other mission than that for which it acts as a substitute. Thus, since an individual cannot lawfully use force against the person, liberty, or property of another individual, then the common force -- for the same reason -- cannot lawfully be used to destroy the person, liberty, or property of individuals or groups."

-- Frederic Bastiat (1801-1850) French economist, statesman, and author. He did most of his writing during the years just before -- and immediately following -- the French Revolution of February 1848

FEATURE: WHEN HUNTING'S GUNFIRE BECOMES A DINNER BELL

Ethologist Dr. Valerius Geist in British Columbia is the former program director of Environmental Sciences at U. Calgary, and he is known world-wide for his studies and writings about large game animals. Val recently sent me an e-mail about something that hunters should be aware of. German hunters are reporting that when they're out in the woods, and they shoot a red deer, fallow deer, roe deer or wild boar, wolves immediately show up. It's common knowledge that predators like wolves, coyotes, and bears will feed on the remains of game animals. However, in Germany the wolves don't seem to want to wait until the downed animals have been dressed, they aggressively approach the carcass and the hunters.

The only legitimate poll of NRA members ever done was a national scientific survey commissioned by NRA. It surveyed 1,000 randomly-selected NRA members across the country and found that NRA members are united on today's issues.

- 92 percent oppose banning the sale of firearms between private citizens.
- 92 percent oppose background checks on the sale of firearms between private citizens.
- 89 percent oppose banning so-called "assault weapons."
- 93 percent oppose gun registration.
- 91 percent SUPPORT laws to keep guns out of the hands of people with mental illnesses.
