LIBERALS WANT TO PROHIBIT MORE ASSAULT WEAPONS RATHER THAN BAN HANDGUNS

In an interview with The Globe and Mail, the former Toronto police chief said months of consultations on gun control have led him to reject the possibility of a full ban on handguns, despite official requests from the cities of Toronto and Montreal. "I believe that would be potentially a very expensive proposition but just as importantly, it would not in my opinion be perhaps the most effective measure in restricting the access that criminals would have to such weapons, because we'd still have a problem with them being smuggled across the border," said Mr. Blair, Minister of Border Security and Organized Crime Reduction. BLAKE BROWN: CONSERVATIVES SHOULD TAKE LESSONS FROM PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES

ON GUN CONTROL - OPINION: Progressive Conservatives were ahead of the curve on gun control. In the aftermath of the 1989 murder of 14 women at Montreal's École Polytechnique, the Progressive Conservative Justice Minister Kim Campbell did heavy lifting for then-prime minister Brian Mulroney in passing ambitious new gun controls. The 1991 legislation (Bill C-17) strengthened background checks, imposed waiting periods for purchases, created new safe storage and transportation regulations and limited the size of magazines. Many of these measures were innovative, important and are still operative. Campbell used arguments rarely heard from today's Conservative MPs. "Gun control works," she declared. "It is probably the oldest and most effective form of crime prevention law." While gun control rules "create some inconvenience for firearm users," this was "a small price to pay in exchange for protecting all Canadians from firearms violence." PRISON FARMS SHOULD NOT HAVE REOPENED: BEZAN

Federal Conservative national defence critic James Bazan said on Thursday that he was also going to meet Friday with area "responsible gun owners" in the Kingston area. Those people are licensed firearm owners who are hunters, sport shooters, farmers and collectors, he said. "This is an issue surrounding property rights of individuals, and all the issues point to the fact that the most law-abiding citizens in this country are legal firearm owners," he said. "From a criminal standpoint, almost all the guns that we're seeing on the streets in Toronto, Ottawa and across this country are illegally smuggled in, and handguns had to be registered in this country since 1935." LANGILLE: A HANDGUN BAN IN OTTAWA WOULD NOT PREVENT LOCAL SHOOTINGS

I am writing on behalf of the Eastern Ontario Shooting Club in response to your June 9 news story, "Ottawa councillor says he'll ask for support in joining calls for handgun ban." TRUDEAU'S GOVERNMENT CONTINUES TO FALL SHORT ON MEDIA'S ACCESS TO INFORMATION

During the 2015 election campaign, Justin Trudeau's Liberal government ran on a platform that promised to make "government information more accessible." A lot's happened since, between the SNC-Lavalin scandal putting the administration's accountability to the test, Canada holding a continuously unimpressive spot in world press freedom rankings and a News Media Canada freedom of information audit showing that the Trudeau government's "performance was even worse than in the latter years of the former Stephen Harper government." GUN STORE OWNER CLAIMS SALES ARE THROUGH THE ROOF OVER PROPOSED LEGISLATION

Dunmore's Canadian Gun Hub owner Rocky Rutledge says sporting rifles are flying out of his store. "The Trudeau government is forcing through Bill C-71, which puts further restrictions on gun owners, but it hasn't become law yet and they aren't saying what their intentions are," he said. "This has caused a massive gun buy across Canada because people don't know if they'll be able to buy some of these guns if C-71 goes through. "Thousands and thousands of AR-15s and handguns are being sold across Canada because there's a fear they may be prohibited." Rutledge says people are purchasing the guns now so that if certain rifles are banned, people will be put into a grandfathering program where they can legally keep them until death. CBC - MOUNTIE BROKE THE LAW WHEN HE INVESTIGATED PROTESTER'S BACKGROUND, SAYS WATCHDOG REPORT - A British Columbia Mountie broke the law when he started snooping into a protester's background and leaked information to municipal officials — but it took an outside investigation to convince RCMP brass to see it that way. The incident dates back to the fall of 2015, when a complaint came forward alleging that an officer accessed police databases and disclosed background information to senior municipal officials after a rowdy council meeting, according to a report by the RCMP's independent watchdog obtained through access to information law. The RCMP investigated the original complaint and found its members acted 'reasonably,' according to a report from the force's independent watchdog. THE STAR - BILL C-71 HAS PASSED, WHAT DOES THAT MEAN FOR GUN OWNERS?

These were just some of the claims made Sunday as about 40 protesters demonstrated outside Calgary city hall. The event was organized by the Prairie Freedom Movement, a separatist group, and it was meant to be a show of frustration with efforts by the federal government to restrict gun ownership — centred around the newly passed Bill C-71, an amendment to the Firearms Act which tightens restrictions on firearm vendors and owners. WASH. TIMES - WHY BALANCED REPORTING ABOUT GUNS IS CRUCIAL

Kate Nixon worked as a compliance manager on the second floor of Operations Building 2 in the Virginia Beach Municipal Center. Kate was also one of the 12 people killed by another employee, DeWayne Craddock. As far as the national media has been concerned, that was the story. But in the evening of Thursday, May 30, the night before the attack, Kate was worried that DeWayne Craddock and another employee were dangerous. She talked to her husband, Jason, about whether she should hide a pistol in her handbag. Kate decided not to, because the city bans public employees from having permitted concealed handguns at work. Not all municipal governments in Virginia ban employees from carrying guns. If Kate had worked in Bedford or Campbell Counties, she would have been able to carry her pistol to work. By John R. NEWSWEEK - TWO MAJOR GUN CONTROL BILLS UNVEILED BY CONGRESSIONAL DEMOCRATS

- The first bill, the Handgun Purchaser Licensing Act, would incentivize state and local governments to implement a requirement that would-be gun owners first obtain a license before making a purchase. The 2019 introduction of this bill in the House by Jamie Raskin and in the Senate by Chris Van Hollen both Democrats followed a Johns Hopkins Center for Gun Policy and Research study which found that purchaser licensing is the only effective method of screening potential gun buyers.
- Thursday's second piece of legislation reintroduced a proposal to stem the publication of digital files or code that could be used, in conjunction with a 3D printer, to manufacture guns at home, out of the oversight of federal firearms manufacturing rules. Congressman Ted Deutch and Senator Ed Markey unveiled the 3D Printed Gun Safety Act for the current session of Congress. The bill, if passed, would outlaw the publication of digital instructions or code that would be used to print a firearm or complete a partially finished weapon. By Asher Stockler On 6/13/19

SECOND AMENDMENT EXPERTS DISSECT 'RED FLAG' GUN CONTROL BILLS

Second Amendment legal experts say Colorado's new "red flag" gun control legislation doesn't properly protect due process rights and is ripe for abuse. The experts gathered for a panel discussion last week hosted by the Colorado-based Mountain States Legal Foundation, a conservative public interest law firm. It featured David Kopel, research director for the Independence Institute and a law professor at University of Denver, and Alexandra Garza, state director for the NRA-

Institute for Legislative Action, covering Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico. Colorado Gov. Jared Polis signed a "red flag" gun control bill into law in April. The law allows a judge to issue a temporary extreme risk protection order (ERPO) for an individual's firearms if family members or law enforcement believe the individual is a threat to themselves or others. GUN OWNERS SUPPORT SMART GUNS, BUT FEW WANT TO BUY THEM

The majority of gun owners support the sale of smart guns — but few will actually spend money on the weapons. That's the main finding of a new survey of more than 1,500 gun owners from the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health, published this week in the American Journal of Preventive Medicine. The survey found that 79 percent of respondents supported firearm retailers stocking smart guns in addition to conventional weapons. But they expressed significant concerns over the devices' cost and efficacy. By Alex Yablon, June 10, 2019 https://www.thetrace.org/rounds/gun-owners-support-smart-guns-but-few-would-buy-them/

YOU DON'T NEED TO HIKE WITH A GUN

Unless you're hunting, it's a terrible idea to pack heat in the backcountry. I've had dozens of grizzly encounters, runins with polar bears on Arctic ski expeditions, and more than a few awkward conversations with disturbed individuals over the years—all sans sidearm and no worse for wear. Some of these experiences were scary, but I've never pulled the trigger on my bear spray (much less a pistol), and every one of those encounters made me a better outdoorsman. The only fact that truly matters is irrefutable: the more firearms present in a situation, the greater chance you have of being injured or killed. Period. By Drew Pogge - Jun 10, 2019

PERSONAL PROTECTION - Following President Jair Bolsonaro's legislation this year to ease restrictive firearm laws, Brazilians from many walks of life now will be allowed to have concealed carry handguns without having to prove to police why they need them. These include people such as politicians, journalists, truckers and hunters. Brazilians will be free to choose their own calibers and use up to 5,000 rounds of ammunition per year. SILENCERS MUFFLE GUN NOISE BUT NOT THE DEBATE OVER GUNS

More than 32,000 gun silencers were registered to New Hampshire residents as of last year — more than a tenfold increase from seven years earlier. Silencers hit the news after it was disclosed that a gunman blamed for killing a dozen people in Virginia Beach, Va., about a week ago used one to help muffle shots from a .45-caliber handgun. Silencers — which muffle but don't silence the sound of a fired weapon — are legal in 42 states, including New Hampshire. By MICHAEL COUSINEAU New Hampshire Union Leader Jun 8, 2019

AUSTRALIA - POLICE TARGET GUN THEFT ACROSS REGIONAL NEW SOUTH WALES

Operation Armour will be conducted in rural areas across the state in all Police Districts. General duties officers will be assisted by specialist police from the Firearms Registry, Rural Crime Prevention Team, the Drug and Firearms Squad, and the Criminal Groups Squad's Strike Force Raptor throughout the operation. The operation will focus on preventing, disrupting and reducing firearm thefts. Firearms Prohibition Orders and Weapons Prohibition Orders will be conducted, as well as safe storage inspections. Regional NSW Field Operations, Deputy Commissioner Gary Worboys APM, said the theft and sale of firearms occurs often in regional areas. "Firearms that are not stored securely or stored at locations that are not in daily or even regular use, make easy opportunities for thieves during break-and-enters," Deputy Commissioner Worboys said. ABC NEWS - STUDY SEES LINK BETWEEN VIDEO GAMES AND PLAY

Even as questions about the relationship between violent video games and shootings have been asked with growing urgency, a dearth of good data has made it difficult to draw any definitive conclusions. In a study published study in the JAMA Network on Friday, researchers from Ohio State University claim to have found a link. "This is one of the first studies to show a relationship between violent video games and the risk for gun violence," the study's author, Brad Bushman, told ABC News. By Tiffany Best - May 31, 2019

AUSTRALIAN MP IAN GOODENOUGH ADDRESSES SPORTING SHOOTERS ASSOCIATION OF

AUSTRALIA (SSAA) AGM - As a lifelong shooting enthusiast I thought I'd share with you a snapshot of my experiences and how the SSAA has played an important role in my journey as a competitive and recreational shooter. I'll make some observations of shooting in the current political climate and conclude by suggesting ways in which we may continue to promote and develop our sport. I pay tribute to the SSAA for the important advocacy role it plays in Australia for approximately 180,000 members competing in some 18 different shooting disciplines. Following my election in 2013, I was one of the founding members of Parliamentary Friends of Shooting in Federal Parliament, along with my colleague, Victorian Senator Bridget McKenzie, who has risen to become Deputy Leader of the National Party. It's a bipartisan group and I'm pleased to say a number of Labor members including Anthony Byrne, Joel Fitzgibbon and Rob Mitchell have joined. Our parliamentary friendship group aims to raise the profile of shooting among our national decision-makers through regular events with our Olympians and Commonwealth Games athletes as guest speakers, shooting days at the range and positive promotion of our sport. 13 May 2019 - In Politics https://ssaa.org.au/news-resources/politics/ian-goodenough-addresses-national-agm

GUNTER: 'GREEN' FANTASIES THREATEN TO KILL CANADIAN ECONOMY

In the real world, there can be no doubt that current Liberal policies — such as the tanker ban in Bill C-48 and the impossibly complex environmental and Indigenous reviews of new pipelines in C-69 — amount to economic suicide. They are based on the notion that Canada can be switched from an economy based on fossil fuels to a carbon-free nirvana by the wave of a magic (government) wand. SMITH: TRUDEAU IS BLOCKING ALBERTA FROM SAVING THE PLANET

Alberta's energy industry has solved carbon dioxide. That's what you need to know as Prime Minister Justin Trudeau drives the final stake into the heart of our province's innovative oil and gas sector with his obnoxious bills C-48 and C-69. VARCOE: OILPATCH STUCK IN POLITICAL CAULDRON AS HEAT OVER BILL C-69 GETS TURNED UP

The fierce battle over energy politics and policy in Canada escalated Wednesday over the Trudeau government's contentious Bill C-69. Industry groups, Alberta's energy minister and several executives blasted the federal government's decision to discard many amendments to the legislation that had been pitched by the Senate, and backed by the province. Alberta Energy Minister Sonya Savage said the new Impact Assessment Act, which will change the way major projects such as pipelines are reviewed federally, is a threat to the future of the oil and gas sector — and national unity. Ottawa's rejection of most amendments makes the bill "unpassable," she told reporters at the Global Petroleum Show in Calgary. MARIN: TRUDEAU ONCE AGAIN COMPROMISES CANADA ON INTERNATIONAL STAGE

Retired general Romeo Dallaire was quick to put Trudeau in his place. He said: "I'm not comfortable with that. My definition of genocide, I read it very deliberately at the start of the Rwandan genocide, and it was a deliberate act of a government to exterminate, deliberately and by force and directly, an ethnicity or a group of human beings — and that meant actually going and slaughtering people." Former attorney general Irwin Cotler, a prominent international human rights lawyer, warned that "I think we have to guard against using that term in too many ways because then it will cease to have the singular importance and horror that it warrants." KINSELLA: TRUDEAU'S 'GENOCIDE' COMMENT SPARKS INTERNATIONAL PROBE

Trudeau, however, has imposed a political sentence — on himself. On Tuesday, in Vancouver, he talked about the report released by the National Inquiry into Murdered and Missing Indigenous Women and Girls. "It was genocide," Trudeau said. On Wednesday, one day after the Canadian Prime Minister said Canada had committed genocide against thousands of Indigenous women and girls, the Organization of American States announced it expected Canada to cooperate with its investigation. Justin Trudeau is now the first Canadian Prime Minister to be investigated for state-sponsored mass murder by an international body in which Canada is a member state. FUREY: A DECADE LATER, CANADA'S FREE SPEECH DEBATE IS BACK WITH A VENGEANCE

Now old warriors have to muster the energy to fight again. Some of the true lions, like Jonas and Hitchens, aren't even around anymore. The other day I was chatting with Barbara Kay – another decorated veteran of the last free speech debate – about this and she was not optimistic, fearing that they'd lose this time around. No wonder. There are now increasing calls not just from activists but politicians in positions of power to heavily policy [police?] the internet and to bring back old "hate speech" laws that were really just used to prosecute speech the censors personally disliked.
